Forecast For The United Kingdom
Issued by Met Office Exeter
at 0400 on Thursday 29 Apr 2021

++ Valid for broadcast between 0600 and 1800

Headline:
Cool and showery for coming days. Wet and windy Monday.

Today:
Sunny spells and showers for most. Showers mostly around exposed north and east coasts at first but developing more widely inland by afternoon. Some showers wintry on northern hills. Mostly dry in southeast. Feeling cool.

Tonight:
Showers dying out inland but continuing around coasts exposed to the northeasterly winds. The odd shower possible later in the night in central parts. Chilly with rural frost for some.

Friday:
Another day of sunshine and showers, these most frequent around coasts at first but developing more widely inland by day. Staying cool.

Outlook for Saturday to Monday:
Rather cold with scattered showers Saturday and Sunday. Further night frosts for many. Becoming wet and windy Monday, with gales in places. Still rather cold, though milder by night.

(C) Crown Copyright 2021. Published by the Met Office.